Vienna May, 26.

We have the following Diary of the Queen of Spain's Journey as far as Inspruck.

THE 25th of April Her Catholick Majesty began her Journey from the Castle of Haderstorff, din'd at Mauerbach, and in the Evening arriv'd at Tulln, where she was receiv'd with Ringing of Bells and firing of Cannon.

The 26th, after performing her Devotions in the Church of the Monastery there, she proceeded to Salladorf where she din'd, and in the Evening was receiv'd at St. Pöten by the Bishop and all the Ecclesiastics.

The 27th, Her Majesty laid the first Stone of a Church of a Monastery of Carmelite Monks, newly founded in St. Pöten; and thence proceeding to Melck, was receiv'd there with Salvoes of Cannon and Ringing of Bells by the Bishop, who entertain'd Her Majesty and all her Retinue with great Magnificence and Splendour, both at Dinner and Supper.

The 28th, Her Majesty having perform'd her Devotions in the Church of Melck, where the Holy Sacrament was expos'd on the Altar, continu'd her Journey, the Cannon firing at her Departure, din'd at Neuenmarck, and at Night reach'd Amstetten: Where she staid all the 29th, that Her Train, who were fatigu'd as well by the Journey as the Rain, might rest and refresh themselves.

The 30th, Her Majesty with all her Attendants pass'd the Mountain of Strenberg, on which she din'd, and proceeding to the City of Ens, was receiv'd with a tripple Salvo of the Artillery and of the Musquets of the Burghers who were under Arms, and complimented by Deputies from the States of Upper Austria, who made her a Present: And at Night the principal Streets were illuminated.

The 1st of May, Her Catholick Majesty, after having perform'd her Devotions in the Church of a Monastery, continu'd her Journey to Ebersperg; din'd there, and in the Evening arriv'd at Wells, being receiv'd with due Honours.

The 2d, She din'd at Maria Trenck, and lay at Lambach.

The 3d, She din'd at Haag; and entering the Territory of Bavaria was welcom'd by Deputies from the States of that Dutchy, who made her a Present: That Night she lay at Ried.

The 4th, Her Majesty, being attended by some Troops of Danish Horse for her Guard, continu'd her Journey to Althain, din'd there; and in the Evening enter'd Braunau, where the Magistrates receiv'd her with great Honours.

The 5th, She left Braunau, pass'd the River Inn, and in the Evening enter'd Alt Oettingen, where landing from her Coach near the Chappel of the Miraculous Image of our Lady, she was receiv'd at the Door with all due Honours by the Chapter; and having perform'd her Devotions, and heard the Litany sung. Her Majesty went to the Lodgings prepar'd for her, where she was welcom'd by her Mother the most serene Dutchess of Brunswick-Wolfembüttel, and by the most serene Princesses her youngest Sister, who were both come thither from their Residence to meet her.

The 6th, Her Catholick Majesty perform'd her Devotions before the Miraculous Image of the Virgin. The most serene Prince of Lorraine Bishop of Osnabrug, treated Magnificently at Dinner the Dutchess and Princesses of Brunswick-Wolfembüttel, with the Men and Women of Quality of their Retinue; and the Count de Harach Coadjutor of Saltzbourg gave a splendid Treat to the chief Officers and others of the Imperial Court.

The 7th, Early in the Morning Her Majesty went Incognito to the Chappel of the miraculous

Image, and having receiv'd the Communion and heard 3 Masses, return'd to her Lodgings; whence at 11 a Clock she came agen to the Chappel in a publick Manner, to be present at divine Service; and after Dinner did the like.

The 8th, Her Majesty went agen to the said Chappel before Dinner, and among other Oblations, caus'd a Jewel of very great Value to be hung upon the miraculous Image; and after Dinner she went thither once more. After which, the Dutchess her Mother accompani'd her to her Coach, and took her last Farewell of her in a very passionate Manner: Her Majesty proceeded on her Journey; and the Dutchess took the Road of Landshut, to return to her Residence. In the Evening her Majesty reach'd Crainburg.

The 9th at Noon she arriv'd at Wasserburg, and was saluted with a tripple discharge of Artillery and Musquets.

The 10th, She enter'd Rosenheim.

The 11th at Noon she got to Fischbach and din'd there; Having been attended by Guards of Horse all the Way through Bavaria. Arriving on the Frontier of Tirol, Her Majesty was receiv'd and complimented by the Count de Konigl Captain of that Province, as also by the Count de Gelhorn Governour of Kuelstein, into which Fort she was receiv'd under a Salvo of the Artillery and of the Small Arms of the Garrison, who stood rang'd in proper Order in the Passage.

The 12th at Noon her Majesty enter'd Rottenburg, and at Night Schwarz; the Artillery of both Places being thrice discharg'd at her Entrance.

The 13th, Her Majesty having perform'd her Devotions, continu'd her Journey to Hall, where descending from her Coach, She was complimented by the most serene Prince Charles of Neuburg, Palatine of the Rhine, and Governour of the Country: She din'd there, and having afterwards been entertain'd with a Comedy, proceeded to Inspruck, and entering that City at 9 a Clock at Night, was welcom'd with repeated Salvoes of Cannon, and receiv'd in great Splendour by the foremention'd Prince and the Princess his Consort, with a great Number of Men and Women of Quality, dress'd in rich and magnificent Habits.

The 14th, the Court appear'd agen in all its Gaity and Splendor, and her Majesty went with a numerous and noble Train, to the Church of the Franciscan Friars. The rest of the Day pass'd in Feasting and Diversions; In the Square before the Palace, two Fountains ran white and red Wine for the Populace, and at Night the Palace was illuminated with Wax-Torches.

From the Leiden Gazette, dated June 8.

Rome, May 19. The 14th Instant a Consistory was held, in which 'tis said it was resolv'd, that the Cardinals Archinto and Morrigia should go and compliment the Queen of Spain at Milan, as of their own Accord, and without any Character or Order from the Pope: Which may breed new Disputes with the House of Austria: But 'tis given out, for one Reason of the Pope's desisting from his Resolution to send a Legate a Latere to make his compliments, that he has receiv'd Advice from his Nuncio at Madrid, that it had been signified to the foreign Ministers, that if any of their Principals paid the least Honours to that Queen, they should on the first Information of it immediately retire from that Court.

From the Amsterdam Gazette, dated June 8.

Venice, May 26. The Queen of Spain arriv'd the 21st Instant at Trent, where she was receiv'd with Salvoes of Cannon, lodg'd in the Castle, and splendidly entertain'd by the Bishop and Prince of that City: She has since continued her Journey towards Roveredo, designing to arrive the 26th at Brescia. Orders are given for her being receiv'd with with great Honours in all the Places in her Passage belonging to this Republick. A Regiment of Imperial Horse, waits on the Frontier of this State, to guard her to Milan. They write from Bologna, that Prince Ercolani the Emperour's Ambassador, was on his Departure for Verona, to meet her Majesty in her Passage: And that Prince Gaston of Tuscany had pass'd through Bologna with a Retinue of 50 Persons, 2 magnificent Coaches with 6 Horses, and 4 excellent Saddle-Horses richly accoutred, to meet her said Majesty, and compliment her in the Name of the great Duke his Father.

Roviedo, May 27. The Queen of Spain arriv'd here the 22d Instant at one in the Morning, accompanied by the Prince of Lorrain Bishop of Osnabrug, and Olmutz, with a numerous Retinue of Officers and People of Quality of both Sexes. Illuminations were made in all the Streets, and at the Castle, all the Cannon of which were several times discharg'd, as were also the Artillery of Biseno, Castellano, Castelnovo, and Castelnovo. Her Catholick Majesty pass'd the 23d here, and the next Day proceeded on her Journey, the Cannon firing at her Departure. That Evening she was receiv'd on the Frontier, by General Molino, in Quality of Envoy from the Republick of Venice, with great Pomp and Magnificence. The 25th in the Evening she arriv'd at Dezanano, accompanied by that General, and attended by a Guard of several Troops of Dragoons and Capellotti [Cavalry wearing Head Pieces] Her Majesty was to reach Brescia Yesterday, where she is to rest to Day and appear in Publick. The Duke of Modena is to come thither, as also the Duke of Parma, and the Ambassadors of Savoy and Milan, to compliment her. An Opera and other Entertainments are prepar'd for her at Brescia.

From the Leiden Gazette, dated June 8.

Milan, May 25. Cardinal Morrigia is come hither, under Pretence of visiting the great Treasurer his Brother, who died since his Arrival; but 'tis believ'd he is come rather to compliment the Queen of Spain, joyntly with Cardinal Archinto, either of themselves, or on the Part of the Pope, because he has caus'd the Palace of the Marquis Pagani to be fitted up for his Residence. The Judges have receiv'd Order, to inform themselves of the Number and Circumstances of Prisoners that may be under Confinement here for such Crimes as do not render them wholly unworthy of Grace and Pardon, to the End they may be set at Liberty when Her Catholick Majesty makes her Entry into this City.

Turin, May 23. The Marquis de Prie, the Count de Castellbarco, and the Marquis d'Onrubia Minister of King Charles III, are gone from hence, to meet the Queen of Spain, who is expected at Milan the 29th Instant.
